The Republicans in Congress intend to do one good thing and that is to make thorough work of the contested election cases, and oust all the Democrats who hold their seats by fraud.

There are lesss than four thousand English speaking people in Japan, whose population is 35,000,000, and there are not five thousand in the Chinese empire, whose population is 409,0000,000.

The House of Representatives has again settled another election case. Finley, Democrat, representing the Second Florida district, being unseated, and Bisbee, Republican, sworn in. Justice is now having fair play in Congress.

There is a Republican paper in Pennsylvania which attempts to straddle the split in that State by supporting both tickets. It should hoist the Democratic ticket when nominated, and thus make sure of being on the side of the one which wins.

The persons who suffer the most by the strikes are the wives of the strikers. The blow falls doubly heavy on them because they must "run the house," furnish the table and care for the children, when the income has been stopped, and the husband indulges in idle hours. It is said that the women, as a rule, however deeply in sympathy with their husbands, are usually opposed to the strikes, for the reasons already stated.

Governor Crittenden, of Missouri, denies, so the dispatches from Jefferson City say, that he ever offered pardon to Frank James, or that he has ever received any proposition from James' attorney. He makes a clean sweep of the whole business, and denies ever having made any proposals to the Governor of other States to deal out matchless clemency to the outlaw. In the meanwhile Frank James goes on defying the authorities of Missouri and other States and laughing at the imbecility of the detective force of the country.

What little heart the Democrats in Pennsylvania have, there are signs that they will lose it. There seems to be a favorable opportunity for them to carry the State this fall, but as the Democratic party was never equal to any emergency, the leaders are fearful that the party will make bad use of their opportunities, and allow the Regular Republicans to carry the State. One of the leaders of the Democracy publishes the following to the party: "Will it demoralize them because it opens the prospects of an easy victory over the divided enemy? This is just what we are afraid of. It is to be feared the State Convention will lose its head. Victory will look so certain that it may lead to a regular scramble for the nominations, and the weakest men become the nominees. Prosperity, a greater trial of character than adversity, may be the rock upon which the Democratic party will split within sight of, and almost touching shore."

The strike among the iron workers in the Middle States and in the West is the most pretentious strike that ever took place in the United States. It is estimated that nearly 150,000 men have concluded to quit work because the mill owners refused to increase the wages of the workingmen. When the strike will end and what will be the ultimate result, can not be told now. It is the most serious uprising of workingmen ever known in the United States, and is of greater magnitude than that of 1877 when so much blood-shedding, riots, and destruction of property took place. Men by tens of thousands quit work in a single day, and will try to force capital to accept their terms, or silence and darken every furnace in the land. All the workingmen who have concluded to accept idle hours and no pay rather than work for moderate wages, have not done so of their own free wil and accord. In a large majority of cases, they are men of families and cannot afford to idle away their time and draw no pay. But the orders came from the leaders of the union to stop, and the men bowed their necks and took on the yoke. They have decided to endure the sting of poverty, to suffer from the want of the necessities of life, and to bring discontent and misery in the homes, all for the sake of serving the union and being its slaves. There is no difference between the interests of capital and labor. It is true that in all things capital has the advantage of labor, but their interests march hand in hand, and without the one the other cannot gain permanent success. In all strikes, however, there is a vast difference which workingmen do not consider. When necessary, capital can fold its arms and rock in the chair of ease surrounded by luxury, and patiently wait till hunger and want compel the workingmen to light up the furnaces again and resume their labors.

It is a pity for all concerned that there is war between capital and labor. There are a good many merciless autocrats among the owners of vast capital, and the lack of judgment on the part of these men, and a corresponding lack of judgment on the part of the selfish and ambitious leaders of the trades union, bringing about the terrible scene of 1877, and the simultaneous closing of hundreds of mills in 1882.

THE FIRST GUN.

A Mob of Armed Men Attack an Alton Train at Brighton Park.

CHICAGO, June 2.—It is announced with regret that what may be the first gun of a labor war has been fired. The regret, too, is enhanced by the fact that a citizen, much respected and standing high in the community, has been shot down and grievously wounded, in all probability by no son of toil, but by some ruffianly loafer, skulking to pillage and kill under the guise of a workingman.

It was just before 7 o'clock last night when the following brief dispatch was received at the Desplaines Street Police Station, the sender being a Chicago, Alton and St. Louis railroad conductor: "Judge Pillsbury, of Pontiac, was shot on my train. No. 10 at Western avenue just north of Brighton Park. My train was attacked by fifty or more strikers. They rushed into the train and struck right and left with iron rods and clubs, several persons being seriously injured, the Judge being one of them. Several shots were fired."

The matter was promptly investigated and found to be but too true. A gang of dissatisfied dock laborers who had quit the employ of the Joliet Iron and Steel Company, became enraged at the employment of others to do the work they had refused to do—unload vessels at the company's docks in Bridgeport.

The workers had been brought in from the main works at Joliet, and were being taken back to their homes on a train at the close of their day's labor. On the same cars were other citizens in various walks of life, and also women and children. When the train reached a point a short way outside the limits of this city a horde of ruffians armed with revolvers and clubs attacked it. Four clambered into the engineer's cab and compelled him, at the point of the revolver to stop. Then the balance boarded the cars and commenced shooting and striking indiscriminately. So far as known, the only citizen dangerously hurt is Judge Pillsbury, who was shot in the left groin. The rioters seemed to be especially severe in their hatred of some colored laborers, several of whom were horribly beaten.

Judge Pillsbury was brought back to this city on a special train about seven o'clock, and conveyed to the Washington hotel.

THE PITTSBURG STRIKE.

PITTSBURG, June 1.—The great strike of the ironworkers was inaugurated today. Twenty thousand men and boys who yesterday added to the wealth of the community by good, honest work, are today idle consumers. Yesterday this vast army of producers earned fully $80,000; to-day they squandered part of it. A strange stillness prevails throughout the city. Clouds of impenetrable smoke no longer hang over the town. The strike brushed them away as if by magic, leaving a clear sky and a bright sunlight seldom witnessed in Pittsburg. All the thirty odd iron mills in the two cities are idle, with one single exception—the Union Mills of Carnegie Bros. & Co. Thousands of men arrayed in best apparel, all day long paraded the streets, talking, laughing and squandering their money. The strikers are quiet and orderly. They have the sympathy of the public, and will commit no breach of the peace unless goaded by desperation to turn the tide of public sentiment against them.

FRANK JAMES.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 1.—Dispatches from Jefferson City says that Governor Crittenden denies having offered Frank James a pardon, or having any proposition from Attorney Hair in regard to a pardon or other form of executive clemency in behalf of James. He further denies having any proposals to the Governors of other States asking them to join him in extending clemency to James and adds that James has never applied to him for clemency or pardon.

TO CLEAR THE CALENDAR.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The election committee will insist upon disposing of the cases ready for action regardless of other business, and expect to clear the calendar of at least two more cases this week. To-morrow morning a sub-committee will hear arguments by the contestee in the Frost-Sessingham case in relation to an extension of time for filing a brief, and the Strobach-Herbert case will also receive attention. Should the House concur in the recommendation of the elections committee, declaring the seat now occupied by Mr. Shelley vacant, on account of the death of the contestant Smith, the membership of the House will be reduced to 292. It is probable that when all of the election cases are gotten rid of the House will consist of 154 Republicans and 138 opposition, as follows: 129 Democrats, 7 Greenbackers, and 2 Readjusters. As the latter generally coincide with the Republicans, the strength of the majority may be safely estimated at 156.

DISAPPEARANCE.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 1.—Anthony Harvey, a temperate, hard-working man, living near the city, a man of some cash and other property, disappeared about a week ago, abandoning valuable property, and his friends assert that he must have been a victim of foul play, and have begun a vigorous search for him.

Truth is Mighty.

When Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., announced that his "Favorite Prescription" would positively cure the many diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, some doubted, and continued to employ the harsh and caustic local treatment. But the mighty truth gradually became acknowledged. Thousands of ladies employed the "Favorite Prescription" and were speedily cured. By druggists.

A LONG FALL.

MILWAUKEE, June 1.—Anton Katzecker, a painter employed on the Friend block, fell down an elevator shaft, a distance of fifty feet, and had his knee and both legs broken. He is alive to-night, but recovery seems hardly possible.

MANGLED.

MILWAUKEE, June 1.—Three railroad employes named Charles Thompson, Wm. Luthie, and Joseph Wood, were run over by a freight car to-day and fearfully mangled. Thompson had both legs cut off. They were engaged at some mechanical work under the car, when a train backed up against it and drove it over them. Thompson is not expected to live, but the others may recover.

From Poverty to Eminence.

In an address before the medical classes of the University of Penusylvania, after touching upon the chances every student has for success in the world, the eminent surgeon, Dr. D. Hayes Agnew, said: "Let me repeat to you that the success you seek lies wholly within the pale of the law, and if I were to lay before you what I believe to be the conditions which regulate advancement or distinction in this life, I should say first that the subject which is to command the service of your hand and mind must be intrinsically worthy, and here let me say that I have never known a medical man, the governing principle of whose life was mercenary, to reach distinguished success. The purer and more ennobling the subject which engrosses the attention of the student the more will his mind be elevated, his feelings refined, and the whole man be lifted out of the environment of his lower nature into an unclouded atmosphere of thought and feeling."

"There is an opinion much too prevalent in the world that the posts and places in life depend largely on an undefined and unregulated force, which makes man the passive creature of a fortuitous play of circumstances. Wealth, family, genius, have all been pressed into notice as constituting important factors in the race for distinction. How many have fought their way to the front and in spite of poverty have at length filled the high seats of learning and power. Poverty did not prevent Samuel Johnson rising to literary eminence, nor Schlieman from becoming the first palæontologist of his time. Poverty did not prevent Linnæus becoming illustrious. Heyne, of Gottingen, the son of a weaver, notwithstanding he was compelled to struggle for over thirty years with extreme poverty, yet finally became the most eminent classical scholar of his time. Velpeau, the great figure in French surgery was the son of a blacksmith, Jobert the son of a washerwoman. Duputren was so poor when he commenced the study of medicine that it was said he was obliged to use for his lamp the fat from the dissecting table over which he wrought. Littre, the very learned translator of the works of Hippocrates, rose from the most abject poverty."

Dr. Agnew paused an instant, and his next words were interrupted by applause from the students when the celebrated surgeon referred for the only time to the most distinguished patient he ever had. "Garfield," said he, "he was a canal boy whose poverty did not prevent him from rising to the first place in a nation's heart. Ancestral blood, divorced from all else, constitutes a valueless possession, and some of the greatest failures in history have been those whom the world recognized as men of genius, or, as Carlyle would term them, men with a prodigious capacity of carrying troubles.

"Turning now to the medical profession, does it come short of the conditions which have been designated as essential to a life pursuit? It has always remained to me an unsolvable paradox that a profession whose members do so much to relieve humun suffering in all walks of life and are so willing to sacrifice for the benefit of others: a profession whose members ordinarily devote one-fourth of their lives to the gratuitous dispensing of their services, and so few of whom accumulate a competency of this world's goods sufficient to keep the wolf from the door, or, at best, to remove the anxieties of advancing years—I say it is puzzling to explain in the face of such a record why so little sympathy exists between the physician and the public. Only let some question of general importance arise in which the character or professional reputation of a medical man is involved, and, ten to one, the public will range themselves over against the doctor."

A Clever Husband.

Only a short time ago, says the Osceola Sentinel, while we sat in an Osceola store, we saw a man and his wife from the country trading. The woman had the appearance of being a hard working, intelligent lady. She was examining a piece of calico or other cheap dress goods. The clerk said: "Shall I cut you off ten yards?" The pale faced, hardworked woman turned to her husband and in a timid, frightended manner asked him if she might buy a dress, as she needed it, and the cost would less than $1. "No," he grunted, "I can't afford it," and yet he had just paid as much for a great plug of navy and a paper or two of smoking tobacco. The poor, illy-clad, but neat woman, subsided as though this was no new experience, while her rough, course, and animal husband bit off a mouthful of the weed, and ordered her to get ready for home.

H A. PATTERSON, P. M

Just in Time.

It was also an Ohio man who, when a terrible storm set in one night, rushed into the house of a neighbor and cried out:

"Jones, this is the ending up of earth!"

"I'm afraid so—I'm afraid so!" was the reply.

"And what shall we do?"

"Make our peace with Heaven!"

The wind blew still stronger, the house began to shake, and the excited man exclaimed:

"Jones, you lost five bushels of wheat last fall!"

"Yes."

"And you have your suspicions!"

"I have. The man who took my wheat had better own up."

"Can you forgive him?"

"I can."

"Well—"

Here the wind suddenly dropped, and after a look through the window the conscience-stricken man turned and finished:

"Yes, if I ever meet him I'll advise him to call around!"—Detroit Free Press.

—Between the acts of "The Mascotte," in Richmond, by an opera company, the stage manager said to the audience: "Ladies and gentlemen, I must claim your indulgence for Mr. Standish, who plays Pippo to-night. Women Never Think!

If the crabbed old bachelor who uttered the sentiment could but witness the intense thought, deep study and thorough investigation of women in determining the best medicines to keep their families well, and would note their sagacity and wisdom in selecting Hop Bitters as the best, anddemonstrating is by keeping their famies in perpetual health, at a mere nominal expense, he would be forced to acknowledge that such sentiments are baseless and false.

Comforts of Modern Travel.

The companies which run palace parlor and sleeping cars over our railroads have made a good thing out of the public. They are now talking of consolidating their interests and thus forming a greater monopoly than they have enjoyed. Their cars are in many respects such a convenience that the public cheerfully pay the exorbitant prices charged for accommodation in them. Yet there are several respects in which these vehicles can be improved. When sleeping cars were first introduced the ordinary cars were far less comfortable than now, both in the shape of their seats and the softness of their cushions. The ordinary cars have been improved in such extraordinary ways that many of them are now quite as desirable as either the sleepers or the drawing-room cars.

In most cases the upholstery of the sleeping car is too stuffy in appearance and too heavy in texture. The slumbering passenger is surrounded by curtains of such substantial material as to shut nearly all the fresh air from his couch. The arrangements for furnishing light at night are bad. It is true that we do not need much light to go to sleep by. But the curtains shut out the glare from sleepy eyes so effectually that there is no need for the total or almost total eclipse of the lamps which takes place soon after bedtime. This darkness is in the interest of sly thieves who want to help themselves to pocket-books and other portables which unwary passengers stow under pillows. He who would wash his face and hands on a cold morning finds a total lack of warm water for his comfort. Even if there are tender babes on the car they must be washed in ice-cold water. A coil of pipe passed around the heating apparatus and attached to a special reservoir would provide all the hot water passengers could need. The expense of such a reservoir and its spigot would be but trifling.

In the parlor cars, which are furnished with chairs, most of the chairs are too high in the seat, too straight in the back and too much like the official chairs of Magistrates or the thrones of Kings and Emperors. A low and easy chair, with its back so shaped as to be easy to recline in, would be incomparably better, even if it had not half as much carving or varnish on it. Yet with all their faults, the palace and parlors are a boon, even if an expensive one, to the traveling community.—Philadelphia Times.

"HOW DO YOU MANAGE," said a lady to her friend, "to appear so happy all this time?" "I always have Parker's Ginger Tonic brandy," was the reply, "and hus keep myself and family in good health When I am well I always feel good na tured." See other column.

The "Previous Question" in the House of Commons.

It is not surprising that the introduction into the House of Commons of the "cloture," or what is known by parliamentarians in this country as the "previous question," should be so stoutly resisted, when the importance of the innovation is historically and practically considered. Looking at the subject in the light of the present and its necessities, the wonder is that some method of closing a debate within a reasonable period should not have been resorted to before this late day; but, when we look back and remember how few debaters there were in the days when Mr. Pitt and Mr. Fox led in the discussion of important questions, how conservative the English people are, and how opposed they are to a new departure from the old methods of procedure, we easily realize that the opposition to Mr. Gladstone's new rule is not altogether unnatural.

Prior to the adoption of the Reform bill in 1832, the House of Commons was a large body only in theory, for while the number on the clerk's list was large, the number of absentees was also always very large, the speaking was restricted to a limited number of orators, and the debates on the most important questions usually terminated by the natural process of exhaustion in a few hours, so that the main question came without forcing.

But the Reform bill in 1832 not only added many more members to the Commons, but it threw into it many conspicuous citizens who belonged to the middle classes, like Mr. John Bright, men fitted by education, ability and training, to properly represent the ideas and defend the principles which had brought them prominently to the notice of the public. Instead of the leading parts being all taken by a dozen of bright and distinguished leaders, as was the case in the days of Fox and Pitt, there was a crowd of new speakers, representing uneasy constituencies, who insisted on being heard. As a natural consequence the debates became more and more protracted and wearisome, the party contests became more bitter and prolonged as the House membership resolved itself into cliques and factions, which resisted obnoxious measures by what is now called "filibustering" in this country—a word that has come into general use since Jefferson's Manual was written.

Of late years these obstructionists have become so numerous and so persistent, and so determined to delay certain Government measures that were obnoxious to them, that it became manifest some decisive measures must be adopted, or all legislation would be defeated by the chronic dead-lock. No matter whether the "filibustering" was resorted to by the Tories, Radicals or Irish members, or all of them in league against the Ministry, the effect was the same, and there was no way of putting an end to talking against time. The instance of the Irish members keeping the House in session forty-two continuous hours, as was the case on one occasion recently, is an example of the power of a factious minority, under the existing rules of practice, and also serves to show the necessity of curbing it.

Under these circumstances one would naturally suppose that the necessity of adopting a new rule of procedure in the House of Commons would be so apparent that there would be but little opposition to it, especially with the majority party in Parliament, which is charged with the responsibility of keeping the wheels of government in motion. But the proposed new departure is seriously objected to (1) by the old conservative element in Parliament and out of it, which dislikes changes of all kinds, and which is tenaciously wedded to the idea that it is "better to bear the ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of." (2) The application of the previous question to cut off debate looks to many people, even in this country, as a device to stifle the freedom of speech, with which mankind seems to be becoming more and more enamored. Even the majority has a deep interest in the change, because it may be in the minority next year, or next month, and then the bit placed in its own mouth by an overbearing majority may be as aggravating to them as it now is to the minority. (3) The innovation is resisted on the ground that it may lead to still more serious and far-reaching results. An ambitious and reckless Ministry, backed by a resolute and courageous majority in full sympathy with them, might not only pass the most tyrannical measures, but suppress the voice of honest opposition to them on the floor of the House. (4) The Tories unanimously object to the new rule, because they are now in the minority, and expect to remain so indefinitely. Altogether, the position of Mr. Gladstone on this subject is not a pleasant one.

The use of the previous question in all legislative bodies in this country, except in the United States Senate, where it has never been in vogue, has not been prolific of any of the bad results anticipated from its enforcement by the English statesmen. On the other hand, it has been found so useful in suppressing windy speech-makers and unscrupulous filibusters that it will not be long before it must be adopted by the Senate of the United States.—Chicago Journal, Wealth in the Senate.

The present Senate contains at least a score of Senators not one of whom is worth less than $200,000. The richest man is, of course, Fair of Nevada, who probably possesses as much as all the other Senators together. Next to him is David Davis, of Illinois, a widower, who is reputed to be the possessor of millions. It is somewhat difficult to name the Senator whose fortune ranks third in size; but if Eugene Hale of Maine has received the mantle of his father-in-law, Zach Chandler, with its well-lined pockets, his fortune is nearly as large as that of David Davis. The wife of Senator Hale is the only daughter of the late Senator Zach Chandler. Other very wealthy Senators are Miller of California, Mahone of Virginia, and Sawyer of Wisconsin, known to be worth more than a million each. Sewell of New Jersey is a railroad man, and is very wealthy. Senator John Sherman of Ohio, it is said, is worth more than $2,000,000, his property consisting largely of real estate in Washington. Among other Senators who write their fortunes with seven figures are Cameron of Pennsylvania, Camden and Davis of West Virginia, Brown of Georgia, and Plumb of Kansas. Senators Hill of Colorado, Gorman of Maryland, McPherson of New Jersey, and Pendleton of Ohio are all worth more than $500,000. Many other Senators are comfortably fixed, possessing little hoards of from $50,000 to $400,000. Among those who have but little comparatively here below—that is not more than $100,000 apiece—are Morrill of Vermont, Anthony of Rhode Island, Rollins of New Hampshire, Jones of Nevada, Saunders of Nebraska, and Allison of Iowa.—Portland (Me.) Argus.

—New gold discoveries in Montana have started an immigration of thousands of fortune-seekers thither.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Paris scientists recently discussed the effect of the electric light on the eye, and almost unanimously decided that it is harmless.

—Two thousand seven hundred tons of puddled iron were turned out at the Albany and Rensselaer iron works in March, the largest product on record.

—The Scientific American mentions a recently patented device for extinguishing kerosene lamps, which consists of a shut-off for the air supply, the action becoming automatic if the lamp is overturned.

—News from afar reports that a German chemist residing in Russia has discovered a method of solidifying petroleum so that it may be more conveniently transported and afterward liquefied for use.

—A chemical analysis of an unpleasant-tasting bread recently made by a German chemist revealed 42 per cent. of glucose, and 16.8 per cent. of dextrine. This was accounted for not on the ground of adulteration, but by a kind of "malting" of the grain, which was injured by wet weather during the season of 1880.

—Recent observations on light conducted on the summit of Mount Whitney yield the curious result that the sun is in reality of a bright blue color, and would so appear to the eye were it not for the filtrations of the light rays through our atmosphere, which by its different action on various rays finally blends them into white light.—N. Y. Post.

—It is stated that a very simple and neat improvement has been effected in preparation of the tin cans now so extensively used for preserved foods. The body of the can has a beveled rim, upon the slope of which the cover is soldered. When the cover is smartly tapped around the edge, it is expanded and the solder joint broken by the wedge action of the bevel. The can is thus opened without injury to the lid, while the present inconvenient process for cutting open these air-tight cases is entirely avoided. The improvement involves no additional cost, and the soldering is applied externally.—Chicago Journal.

—The Government method prescribed for cleaning brass, and in use at all the United States arsenals, is claimed to be the best in the world. The plan is to make a mixture of one part common nitric acid and one-half part sulphuric acid in a stone jar, having also ready a pail of fresh water and a box of sawdust. The articles to be treated are dipped into the acid, then removed into the water, and finally rubbed with sawdust. This immediately changes them to a brilliant color. If the brass has become greasy, it is first dipped in a strong solution of potash and soda in warm water; this cuts the grease, so that the acid has free power to act.—N. Y. Sun.

—The Page Patent Brick Company, of Rochester, with a capital stock of $60,000, has been incorporated. The kiln to be used is the invention of C. D. Page, of that city. It is seventy feet in height, and twenty feet from the ground are fire-places. It is continually taking in raw brick and turning them out ready for use, the lower part of the kiln being so arranged that the pressure of the brick above forces out the finished brick in a continuous stream down an inclined plane and thence upon a horizontal shoot. They pass along the shoot until the force required to push the column in a horizontal direction equalizes the pressure of the descending column of brick. —Rochester (N. Y.) Express.

PITH AND POINT.

—When fashion arrives at a dead stand still, some one comes forward with a new way of putting up the back hair.

—A Boston conductor cries the name of the street just as a young fellow from the country was kissing his girl, "Sawyer!" "Don't car' 'f you did; we're going to be married next week; so there!"

—James N. Noon is the name of a chap who offers to fight any man in the world. He'll find somebody yet who'll make him wonder why his name stopped in the middle of the day.—Detroit Free Press.

—When Secretary Folger "calls" for thirty million dollars, he must hold a pretty "flush hand." (The foregoing reached this office on a postal card, and it is all Greek to us. It is probably a quotation from a work on Finance.)—Norristown Herald.

—When a Nebraska paper wishes to insinuate that a prominent citizen is going to the bad through liquor, it says: "The Honorable Mr. Murphy is making a valuable collection of snakes." Western editors know how to express themselves poetically.—Lowell Citizen.

—"Mother, does God know everything that papa does?" "Yes, my child," "Well, I hope He won't tell." "What do you mean by that?" she asked, eyeing him sharply and speaking in a tone of severity. "I mean that He saw papa kissing Daisy's nurse in the hall last night."—Brooklyn Eagle.

—No, young woman, you can not study medicine at Harvard College. It's all the faculty can do now to worry a couple of hundred boys through a three years' course in seven years, so that they can tell salts from arsenic without testing them on a patient. Give the boys a chance, girls, and don't overcrowd the profession before they get a start.—Burdette.

—"Do you think, Mary, you could leave father and mother, this pleasant home, with all its ease and comforts, and go to the Far West with a young lawyer who has but little beside his profession to depend upon, and with him search out a new home, which it should be your joint duty to beautify and make delightful and happy like this?" Dropping her head softly on his shoulder she whispered, "I think I could, Archy." "Well," said he, "there's Tom Jones, who's going West, and wants to get a wife. I'll mention it to him."—San Francisco News Letter.

A Very Curious Riddle.

Here is a curious old story that is something like a puzzle:

A crocodile stole a baby, "in the days when animals could talk," and was about to make a dinner of it. The poor mother begged piteously for her child.

"Tell me one truth," said the crocodile, "and you may have your baby again."

The mother thought it over, and at last said: "You will not give him back."

"Is that the truth you mean to tell?" asked the crocodile.

"Yes," replied the mother.

"Then by our agreement I keep him," added the crocodile; "for if you told the truth, I am not going to give him back, and if it is a falsehood, then I have also won."

Said she: "No, you are wrong. If I told the truth you are bound by your promise; and if a falsehood, it is not a falsehood until you have given me my child."

Now, the question is, who won?

An Angel's Touch.

One evening a little girl of nine or ten entered a place in which there is a bakery, grocery, and saloon all in one, and asked for five cents' worth of tea.

"How's your mother?" asked the boy who came forward to wait on her.

"Awful sick, and ain't had anything to eat all day."

The boy was just then called to wait upon men who entered the saloon, and the girl sat down. In five minutes she was nodding, and in seven she was sound asleep, and leaninng her head against a barrel, while she held the poor old nickel in a tight grip between her thumb and finger. One of the men saw her as he came from the bar, and, after asking who she was, said:

"Say, you drunkards, see here. Here we've been pouring down whisky when this poor child and her mother want bread. Here's a two-dollar bill that says I've got some feeling left."

"And I can add a dollar," observed one.

"And I'll give another."

They made up a purse of an even five dollars, and the spokesman carefully put the bill between two of the sleeper's fingers, and drew the nickel away, and whispered to his comrades:

"Just look at her—the gal's dreaming!"

So she was. A big tear had rolled out from her closed eyelid, but the face was covered with a smile. The men tip-toed out, and the clerk walked over and touched the sleeping child. She awoke with a laugh, and cried out:

"What a beautiful dream! Ma wasn't sick any more, and we had lots to eat and to wear, and my hand burns yet where an angel touched it!"

When she discovered that her nickel had been replaced by a bill, a dollar of which loaded her down with all she could carry, she immediately said:

"Well, now, but ma won't hardly believe me that you sent up to heaven and got an angel to come down and clerk in your grocery."—San Francisco News Letter.

ONE thing that is injuring the health of smokers is the paris green which farmers put on their potato vines to kill the potato bugs. Down on Their Luck.

From the Philadelphia Times.

On a winter night in 1870, a gambler, "down on his luck," stood shivering under the flaming light which hung over the entrance of George Busch's gambling palace, St. Charles street, New Orleans. "A norther" was blowing forty miles an hour, and the gambler's linen duster, the only thing in the shape of a coat that he possessed, flapped and cracked in the wind like a torn sail in a hurricane. A friend touched him on the shoulder and said: "Bill, come up-stairs and try your luck; I'll give you a stake." Two minutes later the broken gambler was seated at a faro table with $10 worth of white "chips" before him. The game went on and the white chips were turned into red ones worth five times as mch, and these turn into blue ones, still many times more valuable. Chips were cashed for him at the end of every deal, but still the stacks before him grew. Before two hours had passed he had in money and in chips something over $2,500. Then his friend begged him to stop, or at least to put away $500, enough to fix himself up with and present a decent appearance. The reply was something like Nelson's Victory or Westminster Abbey. The gambler said: "No, luck is with me. I'll bust the bank or drop the the last chip. The friend went home leaving the desperate gamster still playing. The next morning the two met again. The gambler, haggard and dejected, was still wrapt in the same linen duster. "How is this, Bill?" exclaimed the friend. "Why haven't you bought yourself some clothes?"

"I Don't Want That Stuff,"

Is what a lady of Boston said to her husband when he brought home some medicine to cure her of sick headache and neuralgia which had made her miserable for fourteen years. At first attack thereafter it was administered to her with such good results that she continued its use until cured, and made so enthusiastic in its praise that she induced twenty-two of the best families in her circle to adopt it as their regular family medicine. That stuff is Hop Bitters.

The silk brocade for Mrs. Garfield was manufactured to show what can be done by our own manufacturers. The silk was raised in fourteen different states, and was woven at the Patterson mills in New Jersey. It is the first and only piece of silk which is all American, for our manufacturers buy all the rare silks they use. It may be interesting to name the fourteen states which raised the silk for Mrs. Garfield's dress: Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Missouri, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia' Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Texas. I am sorry not to see any mention of Kentucky, but I think the energetic and capable wife of Senator Williams intends, upon her return to her farm in Kentucky, to interest the women and children in this plesant occupation. As there is no process whereby silk can be produced except by raising the worms, it will be seen that the industry can not be over done, and the recompense will be certain.

The manufacture of the black satin brocade which is to be presented to Mrs. Garfield was begun a year ago, when that lady was in the White House. It is so thick and heavy that it will not be much worn, but can be kept as an heirloom in the family. There are twenty-two yards of silk in the pattern, and its actual cost is $20, and its weight is fifteen pounds. In order to better show the pattern of the design another dress pattern was woven with white and purple flowers on a black ground. It is as magnificent as any of the old Lyons brocades of a hundred years ago. The quality of the silk or brocade for sale is the same as that which sells for $5,00 a yard, as no one wishes to wear a dress that weighs fifteen pounds before it is lined or trimmed.

Advancement.

"The very air is luminous with the spirit of advancement."

When we consider the marvelous achievements of this teeming age, we wonder if the end has been reached, and if limitation has not been placed over originality. But as the old and familiar pass away, the new and wonderful continually appear. The march of progress since the world emerged from the dark ages, was slow for centuries. But during the nineteenth century it has gone forth with the rapidity of lightning and with the force of a giant. New application has been made of old ideas in government and in morals. The spirit of progress has breathed upon all of the elements and converted them into new factors in life. Medicine and theology have been largely revolutionized. Even law, one of the most conservative of professions, founded upon authority and practiced by precedent, shows signs of evolution. Chemistry, geology, archæology, ethnology, have all been showering upon the world the riches of their wealth. The travelers have searched every available nook and corner of this planet for new objects of interest. Astronomers have diligently swept the heavens in search of new worlds. Yet, in the face of all the positive advancement, we are asked by Tennyson to stop and:

"Contemplate all this work of Time,
The giant laboring in his youth."

The results of the last few years have shown, is the development of scientific invention, an activity wholly unparalleled in past ages. Some new and startling scheme is thrown up at every step we make. A writer says, "Every man and woman seems specially endowed for some project, and grasping at the future as if certain that it held some grand prize that could be secured by individual or combined effort. We now only stand on the threshold of mechanical discovery and in our infancy in the great world of scientific development. The wonderful results of the past are only stepping-stones to the vast future that lies before us. We certainly have been advancing with rapid strides and with an increased ratio during the latter part of the present century. What may be the grand achievements of scientific discovery, what wonderful developments of practical results may not be expected before its close? We can easily surmise the possibility of some new and inexpensive motive power, that will displace all of the present methods. Perhaps it may be electricity, perhaps a new combination of gases, using the atmosphere, or water, or both combined. It is possible that we may navigate the air with the same ease and certainty that we now do the sea, only with an accelerated speed. How anxious do we peer into the future." These prophetic words are quoted from one who even proposes to overcome friction. We have not yet seen the great age. It is imbedded in the future. Or it might be better to say that it is germinating in the present, and will arise in its splendor to meet the future. But in all the grandeur of this physicial advancement of the world, let no man be forgotten. He should stand out, superior to all, the "finest finish" of his age, and

"The herald of a higher race."

Queer Story of Anna Dickinson.

Chicago Correspondence Louisville Courier-Journal.

You remember I told you that Anna Dickinson would never be more than a curiosity as Hamlet when the announcement was made that she would appear in that part. Now my reason for that was that, although Anna is, in many ways, really a nice fellow, she is not altogether virile and manly. I don't believe I ever told you the story of her attempts to get drunk.

Well, when ever she wishes to express an opinion upon any subject, either private or public, she makes herself practically the master, as far as possible, of experiments and experiences, giving her nearly absolute knowledge in the matter.

Some years ago she was interested in the subject of intemprance. First she read up the subject thoroughly from a scientific, ethical and social standpoint. Then she secured male attire and passed days and nights, not only in the fashionable resorts of vice and intemprance, but in and about the lowest dens and dives of New York and Philadelphia. Not satisfied with seeing all that could be seen of drunkedness and its results, she concluded to go work systematically and get drunk herself.

At this time she was boarding at the Continental in the latter city. She got one or two confidential friends in her room, arranged to have a physician within call, and then, ordering liquors, set about getting chock full in a most methodical fashion.

First she drank freely for the lighter wines. These had no effect upon her, when she resorted to strongest liquors She drank on until she had taken about everything from claret to straight "old Crow," and enough altogether to have sent a dozen roystering Scotchmen under the table. Still she was not drunk. All of a sudden, however, Miss Anna jumped up four feet in the air, clasped her head in her hands wildly, and gave a very womanly sort of a shriek.

The doctor was immediately called, and declared one glass more of liquor would have surely had a fatal effect. She was promptly pumped out, and the result was several weeks' serious illness. But, mind you, she did not get drunk!

"Now," concluded the old gentleman, his eyes twinkling with merriment, "the reasons why Anna Dickinson can't play Hamlet are identical with those why she can't get drunk—and a fellow's no fellow at all you know if he can't get full—sheismply can't do it."

I subsequently learned from a hotel clerk in this city, who was formerly at the Continental, that this statement regarding Miss Dickinson's experiment with liquor was true, and that it came at one time, of very unjust accusations against Miss Dickinson's character.

A POPULAR TONIC

For Weak Lungs and Consumption

No preparation ever introduced to the American public, for the relief and cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Debilitated Constitutions, Weakness of the Lungs, or Consumption in the incipient or advanced stages of the disease, has ever met with the indorsements of physicians or patients as the celebrated "Tolu, Rock and Rye." The repeated and continued sales of the article everywhere are the best evidence of its real merits. Letters and testimonials from every quarter of the country, attesting the stimulating, tonic and healing effects, are in possession of the proprietors, and can be adduced to convince the most skeptical reader of its intrinsic virtues. —Ex-Mayor J. H. Reigart, of Beloit, was shaking hands with some of the Janesville people to-day.

—Mr. Will Main, who has been at work in a foundry at Rockford during the past year, is in town, and will remain for some days.

—Potatoes are getting to be a scarce article, and the farmers find a ready sale at full market quotations, for all they bring into the city.

—The lumber business appears to be lively just now, and a good deal of building material is being taken into the country by farmers.

—Frank Wright, son of Mr. Samuel Wright, of the Fourth ward, is dangerously ill, and great fears are entertained that he will not recover.

—There is a small war brewing among agricultural implement dealers hereabouts, which will undoubtedly end, as its beginning indicates, in loud words.

—The holes in that portion of Milwaukee street, between Main and the bridge are being filled with stone, and otherwise repaired, by the street commissioner.

—J. M. Bostwick & Sons announce, in another column, a great sale of ladies' fans, of which they have a large and varied assortment, and will make a special sale of the entire lot next Thursday.

—Mr. George Gookins has become the owner of a piano which is 125 years old. It was made in New York, by John Kearsing & Son, and is 5½ octaves. It is a curiosity in the piano line, and is well worth seeing.

—The State board of control, which has been in session for the past two days at Madison, has confirmed the appointment of S. J. M. Putnam as steward of the State hospital, and Mrs. Sarah F. C. Little as superintendent of the institution for the blind.

—Mrs. W. G. Roberts is in the city, and is the guest of Mrs. Thos. Lappin. She will remain in the city two or three days, when she will proceed to her new home in Moorehead, Minnesota, where Mr. Roberts is now engaged in publishing a newspaper.

—Messrs. Rogers & Hutchinson are putting in the large plate glass windows in the Milwaukee street front of Lappin's block, removing the old sash and frames, and when completed, will add greatly to the business look of the stores in that building.

—In the Circuit Court this forenoon was occupied with the case of Hugh McGavock against Ole Gulack, and resulted in favor of the plaintiff. This was an action of ejectment brought to recover certain lands from the party in possession under a tax deed. Wm. Smith Esq. and John Winans Esq., appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs. Bennett & Sale for the defendant.

—The aldermen of the First ward with the aid of the street commissioner, are determined to have the streets and sidewalks in that ward in first class condition, and when the work, which has been ordered by the council, is completed, tha ward will be a model for good streets and walks. Let the good work go on.

—There was a very pleasant and happy gathering of friends last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bowles, in the First ward, it being in honor of the birthday of Mr. Bowles. During the evening Mr. Bowles received a number of very valuable and handsome presents among them, a watch chain and charm, which he is exceedingly proud of.

—Supervisor Slaymaker, of Turtle, called at the Gazette office this forenoon. By the way, Mr. Slaymaker is a printer by trade, as well as a farmer, he having served a regular apprenticeship in the "art preservative" in Pennsylvania, away back in the '40's, and in a printing office in which the Hon. Edward McPherson was editor.

—Janesville Chapter No 5, R. A. M., at their meeting last evening, anticipating two or three months of uncomfortably warm weather, voted to close their regular meetings until the first regular meeting night in September. Consequently this chapter will not convene, unless specially called together, until that time.

—It was a sort of general field day at the high school this afternoon, the exercises being quite varied and interesting. The programme was as follows: The wants of a woman, Lillie Cunningham; Icarus, Lillie Chapin; Little Nell's funeral, Sophy Grove; Bring flowers, Julia Echlin; Enthusiasm, Frank Haselton; Foes united in death, Anna Doty; The boy who took a boarder, Nellie Harris; Tabitha Topp, Clara Church; The painter of Seville, Ella Godden; The last charge of Ney, Arthur Strunk; A child's dream of stars, Minnie Bump. These exercises are proving quite profitable to the scholars, and great interest is taken in them.

"Lured by Love."

A romance in real life was brought to the public eye at Racine, last Sunday night, and made intensely dramatic, and the actors therein are well known in Janesville. Without going into unnecessary details, all of which have been published, the Gazette will be content to give the leading points in the case as taken from the Racine Journal. What was done at Racine may not surprise any one in Janesville who knows the parties concerned in the transaction, but we give it as briefly as possible to show the mysterious freaks of the humane mind, and how love will somtimes get beside its self. The Racine Journal says:

"Sunday evening quite an exciting episode occurred on the streets and at the W. U. Telegraph office. It seems some years ago Will Ford, of Janesville, married a pretty girl of that place. After living with her for some time, he deserted her and she applied for and was granted a divorce. Some months ago she came to this city and obtained board at the residence of Sam Smith, and was known as Lou Johnson. Ford appeared here, and last nigh endeavored to influence the woman to marry him again. A telegram was written stating that they were married, and was to have been sent to Janesville, but on some account was not forwarded. Justice Snyder was summoned from his home about 1 o'clock this morning to come down and marry them, but when the couple appeared they refused to be spliced, but finally agreed to again, but then His Honor would not marry them. The woman then became temporarily insane and acted wild, but was finally taken to her home in a buggy. It is said she has once before been insane, having roamed the streets of Chicago, crying and wringing her hands. She is heart broken and a pitiful object. What will become of the matter remains to be seen."

Behind the Bars.

Last evening Marshal Hogan received a letter from the deputy sheriff at Galesburg, Illinois, asking for information concerning the history of Fred Knowles and James O'Hara, stating that they were under arrest for breaking into railroad cars. It will be remembered that Knowles and O'Hara plead guilty last March to the charge of stealing a quantity of butter from the cars of the Northwestern company in this city, and were assessed a good round fine by the municipal court. After the settlement of this affair, the two young men left the city, and it was supposed that they had gone West, where they would repent of the latter crime, and endeavor at least, to regain the lost confidence of their friends in this city. But instead of doing this, they have been traveling in Illinois, having been as far south as Bloomington, during which time, we hear that Knowles has been once arrested for petty larceny. Now they are in the Knox county jail, charged with breaking into railroad cars, just what disposition will be made of them cannot now be told, as the officers seem in doubt about having sufficient evidence to convict them. The former friends of Messers Knowles and O'Hara feel disappointed at this turn of affairs in their career.

A Taking Recital.

Every chair in the parlors of All Souls church was filled last evening on the occasion of an entertainment given by the young members of Mrs. J. S. Day's class in elocution. There was such a rush that the seating capacity of the large parlors was completely exhausted, and to accommodate all who came to hear and enjoy the recital, a number of chairs were borrowed from Court Street church. Those who thronged to hear the little ones show what they had learned under the skillful teaching of Mrs. Day, were not "too previous." The entertainment was one of real merit, and beside that it was exceedingly interesting, not only to the relatives of those who took part in the exercises, but to all their friends and everybody else present. The members of the class by whom the programme was carried out last evening are: Rana Oleson, Willie Galbraith, Gracie Knoff, Cora Parker, Cora Nelson, Nellie Sullivan, Mattie Shopbell, Mamie Shopbell, Syble Nash, Lillie Knoff, Susie Hutchinson, and Hattie Nelson. Some of the little tots did remarkably well, especially Cora Nelson, not more than six years old, who recited "Guilty or Not Guilty," and "Papa's Letter." Little Willie Galbraith, who is nearly six, recited "A Boy's Remonstrance" in an excellent manner. The music of the evening was furnished by Miss Sarah Hickey and Miss Fannie Snow. Mrs. Day may justly feel proud over the pronounced success of her class last evening.

Miss Kane's Case.

Miss Kate Kane, who, for a time, studied and practiced law in this city, and was admitted to practice at the bar of this circuit, is now trying to secure admission to the United States circuit court. From the Evening Wisconsin we learn that the motion for the admission of Miss Kane was made by the United States district attorney, Garry W. Hazelton. Judge Dyer took the matter under advisement. It seem that previous to the passage of the law admitting women to the United States Supreme Court, it had been the custom to admit them upon mere motion to the United States circuit court, without reference to any law upon the subject. But the Wisconsin says, "Judge Dyer intimated that inasmuch as there had been a law passed admitting them to the Supreme Court of the United States, thereby admitting them also to the inferior federal courts the provisions of that law would be binding in all its various terms upon the lower tribunals. The hitch in the proceedings is this: The law requires that a woman to be admitted to the United States Supreme Court shall have been admitted to the State Supreme Court three years, and Miss Kane was only admitted last fall. She went out three years ago to Madison, however, to be admitted, and the judges, she says, 'ran away;' but last fall she stole a march on them and was in the Supreme Court room 'before they had time to get their hats and run,' and therefore was admitted."

Married Folks Would be Happier

If home trials were never told to neighbors.

If they kissed and made up after every quarrel.

If household expenses were proportioned to receipts.

If they tried to be agreeable as in courtship days.

If each would try and be a support and comfort to each other.

If each remembered the other was a human being, not an angel.

If women were so kind to their husbands as they are their lovers.

If fuel and provisions were laid in during the high tide of summer.

If both parties remembered that they were married for worse as well as for better.

If men were as thoughtful of their wives as they are of their sweethearts.

If there were fewer silk and velvet street costumes and more plain, tidy house dresses.

If there were fewer "please darlings" in public and more common manners in private.

If wives and husbands would take some pleasure as they go along, and not degenerate into some toiling machines. Recreation is necessary to keep the heart in its place, and to get along without it is a big mistakes.—Sunday Courier.

Cuticura
THE NEW BLOOD PURIFIER
Resolvent

I will now state that I made miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin disease known The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodine potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally, and the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.
Reported by
F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. Drake, in detailing his experience with the CUTICURA REMEDIES, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally, and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally The poison that fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever.
